Kandeish, 1st July 1823,

To the Editor of the Bombay Courier,

MR. EDITOR,

It was not I believe till a very few years ago, that a place of deposit called a Savings Bank, for small sums of money which might from time to time be saved from their weekly or annual earnings by the lower class of the population in England, was first established; the very great utility of the plan in preventing an useless expenditure of what has been so hardly acquired, has occasioned its general diffusion of late over the whole Island.

Without any intention of assimilating the Junior branches of the Military Establishment of this Presidency to those for whose benefit these banks are calculated at home, may I be allowed to suggest that extensive advantage might very possibly accrue, if such an Institution were set on foot here, in which subalterns might be enabled to place any small balances remaining to them at the close of their monthly accompts.

These who enter this country without any particular connections, feel a great degree of reluctance to make trifling remittances to the principal Houses of Agency as not being worth their while to receive; the late unfortunate failure which has deprived so many Officers of their all, renders them as cautious on the other side; indeed consequently to keep what little they have by them, they are exposed not only to robbery but likewise to the temptation of incurring superfluous expences, merely because they have the money.

Digitized with financial assistance from the Government of Maharashtra on 08 April, 2017

The difficulties which ensue from the great difference in so many respects between India and our native country, prevent, I am aware, the introduction of numerous English institutions and habits, the superiority of which over those in practice with us is nevertheless at the same time generally acknowledged; I am too young an Indian to be exactly acquainted with their nature or extent, and shall therefore only beg leave to make the above proposition, it's adoption must rest with wiser and more experienced heads than that of

Your very humble Servant
S.

MY DEAR MR. EDITOR.

In a constitutional morning ride lately, I was induced, from the account you gave in your last number of the damage done along the shores of Back-bay, to go in that direction, and I was somewhat shocked to observe that the upper part of the beach was thickly strewn with human bones. I do not exaggerate when I say that within the distance of one hundred yards you might count as many human skulls. I know not, Sir, whether there be any public officer whose peculiar duty it may be to remove these remains of frail mortality to some public burial place; you will, however, I think, agree with me in opinion that common decency requires that the bones should be carefully collected and buried in some place set apart for the remains of the dead.

Your obedient Servant,
INCOLA

28. Our Sanction of the appointment of a third Member to the Medical Board was communicated in our Letter of the 3rd April 1822, and our Orders in respect to the Salaries of the Members of that Board will be conveyed to you in a separate Dispatch.

29. It is our intention that the Members of the Medical Board shall hereafter be relieved from that situation at the expiration of four years from the date of their respective appointments to it; this Regulation however to be subject to the same modification as the appointments of General Officers to the Staff; namely, that if, on any particular occasion, you should be of opinion that the continued service of any Member of the Medical Board is indispensable to the Public Interests, you may continue him in the situation until our decision on the case shall be made known to you. In every such case, you will furnish us with the requisite information with the least practicable delay.

30. The Medical Gentlemen thus relieved from the duties of the Medical Board will be at liberty either to return to Europe on the retiring Pensions to which they may be respectively entitled, or to resume their duties as Surgeons on the Establishment.

31. The provision made under our present orders for the comfort and advantage of the Officers of your Medical Establishment added to those they already enjoy of retiring on Pensions at an early period, under our orders of 1796 and 1812, together with the provision now made for their more early attainment of seats at the Medical Board is, in our opinion, ample and commensurate with the advantages of our Military Servants in general.

33. We entirely concur with you in opinion that Mr. Gilder has no just claim to the rank which he solicited.

34. Our reply to the memorial of Major Staunton (conveyed in the Military letter of the 27th December 1822, 112 to 14) renders any remark on the subject of Lieutenant Colonel Cleland's memorial unnecessary.

48. Your Proceedings on this occasion were correct.

56. This report is satisfactory.

66. The Salary allowed to a Secretary to a General Officer on Service in Bengal is Rs. 200 (Rupees two hundred) per month, in lieu of all contingencies of office, Servants &c.

67. We do not think it proper to authorize a larger Salary at your Presidency; and we direct that the difference drawn by Major Jackson be refunded.

68. This arrangement has our approbation and sanction.

82. Will be attended to.

83. We shall not object to the grant of a Salary of six hundred Rupees a month to the Secretary of the Medical Board, but adverting to the extent of business imposed upon him, as stated by the Medical Board; we direct that he be not allowed to hold any other situation than that of Secretary to the Medical Board; nor to draw any other allowance than his Salary as such, together with the Pay & Batta of his rank.

84. In reference to the peculiar circumstances of this case we confirm the appointment of Mr. Fallon, as a fixed "Assistant Surgeon" on your Establishment, without claim to future promotion.

87. The orders conveyed in our Military letter of the 9th January 1822 (7 to 12) render any reply to the memorial of Cornet Urquhart unnecessary.

94. We shall not object to your allowing the officers composing the Committee of Survey the additional half Batta of their several ranks whilst Members of that Committe; but we do not think it proper to grant any additional remuneration, or Salary, to any of the officers composing it who shall be already in receipt of the Extra half Batta of their respective Ranks.

95 The allowance to Major Egan is therefore to be discontinued.

115. As the clause in the deed of agreement entered into between the Company and the late Lord Clive, which specifies the classes of Individuals that shall be admitted to the benefits of the Fund, expressly provides that the widows of such officers only, as may become Invalids or Superannuated, or may die in the service, are eligible to the Pension; and as Lieutenant Colonel Mignan had voluntarily retired from the Service, we cannot consider his widow entitled to be admitted a Pensioner on the Fund.

116. Though we have attended to your recommendation in the case of Serjeant Newall, we cannot approve of the principle of allowing non-Commissioned officers to come home on sick certificate under an idea of being eligible to enjoy their full pay while at home and to return with their Rank to India; & we therefore desire that you will not in future grant such permission to any non-Commissioned officer.

119. We have permitted the undermentioned officers belonging to your Establishment to return to their duty viz.

Captain Edward Ford Hamilton,
Lieutenant Thomas Mylne,
Major John Taylor.

120. Captain Edward Towsey of your Establishment has received our permission to remain in England until the departure of the last Company's Ships of the present season 1822 | 23.

121. We have permitted the undermentioned officers to return to their duty on your Establishment, viz.

Captain James Innerarity,
Brevet Captain and Lieutenant George Sangster.

122. Major William Sandwith of your Establishment has received our permission to remain in England until the departure of the Company's Ship "Waterloo" which is appointed to sail for your Presidency in February next.

123. We have permitted Mr. David Forbes to proceed to your Presidency for the purpose of practising as a Surgeon and we direct that he succeed as an Assistant Surgeon on your Establishment; his Rank will be settled at a future time.

124. We have permitted the undermentioned officers to return to their duty on your Establishment viz.

Captain Joseph Brown,
Lieutenant Charles Waddington.

The Governor in Council is pleased to republish the following General Order by Government dated 5th April 1805, (the rules of which were in General Order of 4th December 1817, rendered applicable to all stations subordinate to this Government,) and to state that the mode of issuing the process of the Zillah Courts for enforcing the attendance of the persons alluded to in the 8th Article will in future issue through the Commanding Officer whether European or Native.

Bombay Castle, 5th April 1805.

GENERAL ORDER BY GOVERNMENT.

Since the Establishment of the Adawlut and the Proclamation by which all persons were required to take notice of it's institution, (a Copy of which was forwarded thro' the Commanding Officer of the troops for the information of that Department) the Officer in Command of the Garrison of Broach retains no authority whatsoever over the Inhabitants of the said Town or District, and in like manner as the Judge and Magistrate of Broach has been required to be guided by the Judicial Regulations, enacted for the Town and Division of Surat, so is the Officer in Command there to be guided by the letter and spirit of the notifications and rules laid down in General Orders issued at Surat, and heretofore in Malabar, on the first institution of Courts of Justice in that Province, according to the following articles.

2. The Court of Adawlut possesses the sole and exclusive right to administer Justice both in Civil and Criminal cases, over all the Natives whether Military or not, the Officer in command of the Garrison of Broach, or of the Troops in the District, retaining no jurisdiction, or any authority whatever, excepting those who are subject to Martial law in the cognizance of Officers of a Military description.

3. The utmost attention to be paid by all Officers to conciliate the good will and confidence of the Natives on the late re-establishment of the Hon'ble Company's administration in and over the city and District of Broach, with a view to impress on their minds the salutary conviction, that their good and advantage are, and will continue to be the primary object of the British Government.

4. In this view, particular attention is to be paid not to shock the religious prepossession of either the Mahomedans, Hindoos, or Parsees, more especially by entering or occupying any of their Temples, or sacred places, under any pretext whatsoever.

5. Free egress and regress is to be allowed to the Inhabitants with their customary arms, but Strangers appearing at the gates of the Town of Broach with their arms, to be stopped till permission be obtained from the Magistrate, to whom the Officer of the Guard is immediately to apply.

6. No shop keepers, Artizans, Coolies, or other description of natives are to be forced to render services without hire; and all compulsive labour is prohibited, unless such as shall be authorized by the Magistrate of the City, to whom, when Officers are at a loss for Servants or Workmen, and cannot procure their willing attendance at the usual rate of hire, application is to be made through the Commanding Officer, on notice from whom, the Magistrate will not fail to attend to their accommodation as far as the nature of the case may admit.

7. Particular attention is to be paid to prevent the Natives being interrupted or insulted in the observance of their religious ceremonies or in those of their other occasions of joy or mourning, with no part of which has any Officer, Soldier or Sepoy, the least plea or pretext to interfere.

8. No Officer or Soldier to strike, ill use or confine any Inhabitants of the Town or District of Broach; whenever they have cause of Complaint against any such Inhabitants, they are to state the circumstances to the Magistrate and appeal to him for Justice, in like manner as it is optional with every person to apply to the Adawlut [illegible] jurisdiction for redress [illegible] or Sepoy, and [illegible] be disposed of [illegible] matter of [illegible] this will not [illegible] plained against, from being amenable to the Court; should the result of the reference fail of proving satisfactory to the complainant, or parties deeming themselves aggrieved, and that on his, her, or their renewed application to the Judge and Magistrate, the latter shall think there still continues probable cause of aggrievement unredressed in which and in all other cases, if the complaint be against a Native Officer or regular Sepoy, the Courts process for enforcing the attendance of the party or parties required to answer will issue thro' the Commanding Officer, who is to be held responsible for causing due and ready obedience to it's requisition, whilst in the case of Camp followers and Officers' servants the Court's Summons will be served on them in like manner as in respect to other natives.

9. All applications of whatsoever description from Officers to the Judge and Magistrate of the City, are in future to be made through the medium of the Commandant of the Garrison.

10 The Judge and Magistrate is prohibited from corresponding by letter with any Person on the duties of his Office otherwise than with the Commanding Officer for the purposes above specified.

Captain P. Y. Waugh, of the 1st Regiment of Bengal Native Cavalry, having produced the prescribed certificates, is permitted to proceed to Europe on Furlough for the recovery of his health.

The Governor in Council is pleased to direct Supernumerary Lieutenant Thomas Henry Ottley, of the 2d Regiment Native Infantry, to be brought upon the effective strength, vice Lieutenant John G. Birds, deceased on the 2nd instant.

Bombay Castle, 15th July 1823.

The Hon'ble the Governor in Council is pleased to publish for general information the following Extract, Paras, 2d to 4th of a Letter from the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, dated 26th March last.

Adverting to the General Orders by Government, dated 9th July 1822; The Hon'ble the Governor in Council is pleased to permit the regulated allowances for a Soldier's Child to be drawn for the legitimate Children of all European Pensioned Soldiers to the same extent as when their Fathers were on the effective strength of the Army; but the allowance for wives is only to be drawn by those non-Commissioned Officers and Private Soldiers who are on the Rolls of the "Invalid Class" of the Veteran Company, while present at it's Head Quarters, at whatever station they may be fixed.

Bombay Castle, 19th July 1823

The Governor in Council considering the trouble and inconvenience to which the Commanding Officers of European and Native Corps, are occasionally subject in collecting the full amount for which the effects of a deceased Officer may have been sold; when taken Charge of by them according to the Articles of War, is pleased to declare that all Officers who have or may hereafter purchase the effects of deceased Officers at public Sales in Camp or at Military Stations, and are or may be prevented from paying for the same according to the terms of sale by unforseen circumstances, shall be liable to be called upon for such debts by the Divisional Paymaster within whose range they may happen to be serving or by the Regimental Paymaster according to the following scale.

THE COURIER.

BOMBAY,

SATURDAY, JULY 26TH, 1823.

We are compelled to resort once more to the English files brought by the last ship, there being no arrival from Europe of a later date at any port in India. The season for making quick passages from England is now nearly over and we must not calculate upon any considerable addition to the intelligence already received, for some time to come. The Brailsford, Kitherine Stewart Forbes and Layton are the next expected ships, but their exact time or order of sailing we are unacquainted with.

During this suspension of public news of any interest, we had entertained hopes of being able to fill up some portion of the vacant space with an announcement from the Bombay Green room, or at all events a hint that some piece was under rehearsal. We are sorry, however, to learn that the illness of a leading Amateur has put a temporary stop to the arrangements in progress. This, although we sincerely hope the cause will soon disappear, is a disappointment in the meantime, and unless the Dramatick Corps should adopt the plan mentioned by Goldsmith on a similar occasion, we must be content with exerting our patience for a short time longer.

BOMBAY SESSIONS.

On Monday last the Court met at 11 o'clock, and having discharged the Grand Jury after receiving their report of the state of the Jail &c., the Hon'ble the Recorder proceeded to pass sentence on the following criminals, who have been tried and found guilty at these Sessions, viz

Abbas bin Abdulla Moghull, for Burglary. To be imprisoned in the Jail for six months, and during that period to be once publicly whipped with two dozen lashes, at the place where the Robbery was committed.

Bhugwan Dharsey and Hussen Kassim, Mussulman, for House breaking. To be severally transported to Prince of Wales's Island for seven years.

Munneram Muddonram, for stealing in a dwelling house. To be imprisoned in the Jail of Bombay for 12 months.

Punchum Kulloo Banian, for Larceny. To be imprisoned in the Jail of Bombay for six months.

Junmaul Shack Roushon, for Burglary. To be transported to Prince of Wales's Island for life.

Shewdeinsing Banian, for Larceny. To be imprisoned in the Jail of Bombay for six months.

Bhicka Ismail Ghanchee, for Larceny. To be imprisoned in the Jail of Bombay for six months.

Kassim Ruimtoola Khojee, for Larceny. To be imprisoned in the Jail of Bombay for three months, and to be twice publicly whipped, by receiving two dozen lashes at the place where the robbery was committed, and also two dozen lashes at the time of his release.

Accounts have been received by the Ship Ernest arrived at Madras, that the Triumph from this port for London, was spoken by the brig Le Jeune Adolphe on the 26th of May, in Lat. 24,15 South, and Long. 56, 10 East.

The short memoir of the late venerable Lord Keith, in a subsequent page, will be read with interest by many of our readers.

CEYLON INTELLIGENCE.

JUNE 28, 1823.—We regret having to record a very melancholy accident which occurred in these roads yesterday. As a boat belonging to the Ship Speke was in the afternoon coming on shore with some of the Passengers in charge of the First Mate, on the bar, the surf running very high, a sea struck her and she upset instantly. The Mate and Seamen succeeded in saving themselves, & exerted themselves as much as possible to preserve the Passengers, who were Mrs. Morgan, wife of Mr. Morgan, Hospital Assistant to the Forces, & three Children & an European Servant Woman, but only succeeded in respect to two of the Children, who tho' much exhausted when brought on shore, were by the exertion of proper means restored to life. The bodies of the third Child and the Servant Maid were brought on shore lifeless, and the efforts used to restore animation were fruitless; the body of Mrs. Morgan has not yet been found. The unfortunate husband was standing on the Flag Staff Bastion when the boat upset, and tho' not certain his family were on board had reason to beleive it possible; his grief on learning the actual loss he has sustained may easily be imagined.

OPPOSITION OF BAIL.

A man named Ruttee Narain, who proposed himself as bail for a debt amounting to 3,[illegible] Rupees was opposed by Mr. Fergusson, [illegible] afforded a glaring instance of the false swearing of which the natives of this country are so capable. He swore that he was worth 32,000 r[illegible] pees, but on being pressed as to where h[illegible] property lay, or in what it consisted, he could only give an account of 5,000 rupees: [illegible] swore at first that he was never bail for one [illegible] Mr Emerique to the amount of 12,000 rupe[illegible] which case, he at first said, was settled, a[illegible] afterwards that it would be settled in a d[illegible] or two On being further questioned on t[illegible] subject, however he admitted that he was b[illegible] in all for nine actions amounting together [illegible] 43,000 Rupees.

THE NAVY.—Besides the orders given for fitting out the guard-ships at Portsmouth, similar orders have been issued to the guard-ships of the other ports, which constitute, together, a force of ten sail of the line. The following are their names and stations.—At Portsmouth, Queen Charlotte, 108, Admiral Sir J. H. Whitshed, K. C. B. Capt. B. Hay; Ramillies, 74, Capt. E. Brace, C. B.; Albion, 74, Sir W. Hoste, Bart. K. C. B.—At Plymouth, Britannia, 120, Admiral Hon. Sir A. Cochrane, G. C. B Capt. Skeene; Windsor Castle, 74, Capt. C. Dashwood; Superb 74, Capt. A. M'Kenzie; Bulwark, 74, Capt. T. Dundas—At Chatham, Prince Regent, 120 (to be launched on the 16th of April,) Vice-Admiral Sir B. Hallowell, Capt. W. Parry.—At Sheerness, Genoa, 74, Sir T. Livingstone, Bart.; and Northumberland, 74, Capt. T. J. Malling.

Lord Amherst—If we may form an opinion of the splendour with which this Nobleman's Government in India is likely to be distinguished by the beauty and elegance of the equipages prepared for his use in that country, he will not have been surpassed by any of his predecessors. There are two carriages completed for his Lordship, now standing at the builder's, Mr. Leader of Ox-fordstreet, one is a splendid coach, the body a dark green, richly ornamented with various devices in the most superior gilding; among the most conspicuous is a deep border, representing the Union of the Rose, the Thistle, and the Shamrock, exquisitely executed. The arms of his Lordship are richly emblazoned on each of the side-front and back pannels; the lining and cushions are of the [illegible] crimson silk; the door handles of silver, [illegible] The hammercloth is also ornamented [illegible] front & sides, with the arms in highly burnished gilding. The carriage is a deep red richly adorned also with beautiful gilding. The second is an open barouche of the same colour, having a canopy supported by four light richly burnished pillars. It is in every respect equally splendid with the coach, except the lining, which is of green Morocco leather. The harness of each is in every point of beauty well suited to the distinguished occasion on which it is to be used.

On Wednesday, a Quarterly General Court of Proprietors of East India Stock, was held at the Company's House, in Leadenhall-street, for the purpose of submitting to the Proprietors, a resolution for granting to Col. J. R. Carnac the sum of 30,000 rupees, for his meritorious services; and secondly, for the purpose of entertaining a motion relative to the equalization of the duties on East and West India sugar. The grant was agreed to. After some debate, the sugar question was adjourned. Mr. D. Kinnaird gave notice that he would move that a Petition be presented to Parliament, for the repeal of the clause of the 53d of his late Majesty, which rendered it compulsory on young men who were about to proceed to India in a civil capacity, to continue at Haileybury College during four terms.

THE LATE LORD KEITH.

Viscount Keith, Knight of the Bath, Admiral of the Red, &c. who died on the 10th of the month of March, at his seat of Tulliallan, was born on the 12th of January, 1746, at Elphinstone. He was the youngest son of Charles, the tenth Lord Elphinstone. and Lady Clementina Fleming, only child and heiress of the estates of John Earl of Wigton. Lord Keith showed an early propensity to the Service, in which he passed his life, and in which he rose to the highest distinction. He entered the navy during the seven years war, as a Midshipman, under Lord St. Vincent, then Captain Jervis. After the peace of 1763, he made a voyage to the East Indies with his brother, Mr. Elphinstone, who then commanded an Indiaman. In this service he could not continue, on account of the climate disagreeing with his health. Notwithstanding this, however, he did not hesitate to go again to the East Indies with Sir John Lindsay in 1767, when he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant in the navy.

Some time before the breaking out of the American war, he obtained the rank of Commander. In the spring of 1775 he was made Post Captain, and soon after he obtained first the command of the Pearl, and then of the Perseus frigate. This was the first ship in our service that was sheathed with copper. In this excellent frigate he made a conspicuous figure, as an active and intrepid cruizer, upon the coast of America. He was likewise often engaged in those services in that country where land and sea forces were jointly employed, and his exertions always gave great satisfaction to the officers with whom he acted. The experience which he then acquired was of great service to him long afterwards, when he had a more prominent and distinguished part to perform.

In 1780, Lord Keith returned from America, and was elected Member of Parliament for Dumbartonshire. At this period he was appointed to the Warwick of 50 guns, and soon after captured the Rotterdam, a Dutch man of war of 54 guns, when he is said to have distinguished himself by the manner in which he attacked a ship of superior force, and compelled her to strike. Soon after this he went to America in the Warwick, where, among other services, having first driven La Gloire on shore in the Delaware, he captured L'Aigle, a French man of war. He continued in active service until the peace of 1783. About this time his Majesty appointed him for life to be Secretary and Chamberlain to the principality of Scotland.

In April 1787, he married Miss Mercer eldest daughter and heiress of Mr. Mercer, of Aldie. She died in 1789, leaving an only child a daughter, now married to Count Flahault. The British Barony of Keith descends to her and to the heirs-male of her body.

In 1793, at the commencement of the war with France, he was appointed Captain of the Robust, and went to the Mediterranean under Lord Hood. When Toulon was surrendered to our forces by the French Deputies, he was appointed by Lord Hood to command the seamen and marines. With them he occupied the Port of La Malgue, which commands that town and harbour. He continued in command of La Malgue as long as we possessed Toulon, and repeatedly distinguished himself in land rencontres with the enemy. When we retired from Toulon he commanded the force which covered the embarkation and in order to secure our retiring in safety, and to be assured that the rear-guard of the army got off without injury, Lord Keith was the last person who left the shore, and his ship, the Robust, was the last to leave the harbour. For these services he was made Knight of the Bath, and soon after raised to the rank of rear-Admiral. He next served in the Channel fleet, under Earl Howe. In 1795 he went chief in command of the sea forces against the Cape of Good Hope. As soon as the Cape surrendered, he proceeded to India, and after the surrender of Ceylon and other important places, he returned to the Cape. On this occasion the Dutch squadron, with troops on board, took refuge in Saldanha Bay, where four sail of the line, two large frigates, and several other vessels, in all nine ships of war, surrendered to him by capitulation. For these services, he was made a Peer of Ireland. In 1796 he was chosen Member for the County of Stirling. After a short service in the Channel under Lord Bridport, he was in 1798 sent to be second in command to Lord St. Vincent in the Mediterranean. At this time he particularly distinguished himself by preventing the French fleet from getting into Cadiz to unite with the fleet of Spain. The force under Lord Keith was inferior both to the fleet of France at sea and to the fleet of Spain in harbour. The French Admiral had 19 ships of the line, Spanish 22. Lord Keith, having 15 ships of the line, was determined to give them battle rather than permit them to join; but without this necessity his efforts in the management of his fleet frustrated their intentions, and Lord St. Vincent has often characterised the conduct of Lord Keith on this occasion as equal, if not superior, both in point of decision and of seamanship, to any thing performed during the war. The French fleet returned to the Mediterranean, when Lord Keith followed them and had an opportunity of displaying his great judgement and ability in pursuit of that fleet; and again after their junction with the fleet of Spain this greatly superior force fled before him, & would not risk an action. The pursuit was ended by his ultimately pursuing the French fleet into the harbour of Brest.

About this time Lord St. Vincent retired and Lord Keith obtained the chief command in the Mediterranean in which he distinguished himself by the ability which he displayed before Genoa, and which was the cause of its surrender; and finally, by his operations in the reduction of Egypt, where his efforts were united with those of his illustrious friend Sir Ralph Abercromby, who expired of his wounds on board Lord Keith's ship. In reward for these services, Lord Keith was made a Peer of Great Britain. When the war broke out in 1803 he was appointed to the command of the North Sea fleet, including the naval force in the Straits of Dover. In this command he continued till 1807.

In January, 1808, he married the eldest daughter of Henry Thrale Esq. M. P. for Southwark; of this second marriage, there is only one child a daughter.

He was appointed to the command of the Channel fleet in February, 1812. While in that station it fell to his lot to superintend the embarkation of Napoleon Bonaparte for St. Helena. In this most delicate service he was directed by the sure guides of good sense and right feeling, and performed it without offending the individual with whom he had to deal, & without compromising the honour of the nation which he represented. He was about this time created a Viscount, and peace being restored, his command ceased. From that time he had lived in retirement, in the bosom of his family and in the society of numerous friends. Latterly he has resided on his estate of Tulliallan, where he erected a mansion-house suited to his rank & fortune. There also he has expended large sums in works of permanent utility, and has united with constant acts of voluntary bounty, the encouragement of industrious pursuit and useful ocupation, those sure sources of comfort to a surrounding population.

The strength of his natural understanding enabled him to derive the utmost benefit from all that he had occasion to see or to contemplate. A most tenacious memory and great readiness enabled him to bring all his information effectually into action when the occasion called for it. Such powers, united to a fertility of mind which has been rarely excelled, rendered him a most distinguished character in all that regarded his profession. In social intercourse, his kindly nature was constantly predominant; he was entirely free from affectation in conversation and he dealt out the facts and anecdotes, with which his memory was stored, in a most interesting and amusing manner. Lord Keith was invariably influenced by the kindest feelings for all who were connected with him and, without solicitation on their part, he was uniformly alive to whatever could promote their interest; but this did not limit the extent of his usefulness to others. On the contrary, being always open to approach he was zealous in forwarding to the utmost of his power the objects of deserving men. Accordingly it may safely be said of him, that he could reckon as great a number of meritorious officers, of all ranks and descriptions, who have been placed in their proper station by his efforts, as any man of rank in the service.

SPANISH BIOGRAPHY.

GENERAL TORRIJOS.

This officer, who has now been called from the command of the Constitutional army in Biscay and Navarre, to fill the situation of Minister of War, is not more than 35 years of age; active, intelligent, and gallant. He is a good son, an excellent husband, and an amiable friend. He had a command in the army under the orders of the English General Doyle, by whom he was taken by the hand early in the war, and never dropped until he was made colonel of the Tiradores de Doyle which regiment he brought to a high state of discipline, and led most gallantly to victory on many occasions. There are two remarkable events in this officer's life. He is the person who was selected by General Doyle to lead a sortie from Tortosa, in 1810, under the eye of the Captain-General Henry O'Donnel, & in presence of the whole Spanish army of that division: his orders were "to drive, with 300 grenadiers, the French piquets from a certain height, and to take post there." He gallantly obeyed the first part of the order, but disobeyed the latter part by following the enemy into their very encampment, when, after an heroic resistance and great loss, he was obliged to surrender.

General O'Donnel, now Count of Abisbal, the best officer in Spain, said to his army—"I will crown Torrijos with a wreath of laurel for his gallantry, and then shoot him for disobedience of orders."

When the Tiradores (light infantry) of Doyle joined General Murillo's Division, Torrijos established in it a lodge of Freemasons, called Doyle's lodge. Upon the return of the King, Torrijos was arrested, and thrown into the Inquisition: for many months it was reported, and partially believed, he had been put to torture and ultimately strangled; but there was no truth in the first statement, and it is unnecessary to say the second is untrue, as he now lives to serve his country, which he will no doubt do with zeal and gallantry. He is particularly partial to the English, and cordially hates the French.

THE EMPECINADO.

General Don Juan Martin, called the Empeciando, is now in command of one of the constitutional armies in Spain, and perhaps no man has served his country with more enthusiasti, zeal or gallantry, and yet he is one of those officers who has been marked by the displeasure of the King, whenever an opportunity has offered.

It is true, the representation made by the Empecinado to his Maj sty, in the year 1815, spoke such unpalatable truths to the Royal ear, that Martin (like Mina) was obliged to fly from Madrid and conceal himself.

Amongst the various achievements of this extraordinary person, one has been made known in this country by a celebrated artist, whose picture of the Empecinado's attack upon a French convoy, and making prisoner Marshal Moncey's mistress, was seen in the exhibition at Somerset-house.

He is in the prime of life, about 45 years old, particularly hardy and active; his habits are regular, and those of a plain country man; sober, early in and out of bed, and in constant exercise

He is a staunch friend to the Constitution, and the French will find him a bitter enemy.

"I think," said a farmer, "I should make a good Parliament man, for I use their language. I received two bills the other day, with requests for immediate payment; the one I ordered to be laid on the table—the other to be read that day six months!"

General F. Humbert, formerly distinguished in the army of the French Republic, who landed in Ireland in 1798 and defeated General Lake, &c. died lately at New Orleans.

CAMBRIDGE, April 3.—The celebrated Mr. Belzoni, who deservedly holds the first rank amongst the most enterprising of modern travellers, has presented to the Fitzwilliam Museum the lid of a sarcophagus found by him in one of the tombs of the Kings at Thebes, in Upper Egypt. This interesting relic of antiquity arrived here on Monday, and after considerable difficulty (its weight being upwards of three tons) was placed in the court of the Museum. It was brought to England with the rest of the Egyptian monuments, which Mr. Salt, his Majesty's Consul at Cairo, was enabled to collect, principally through the zeal and ingenuity of Mr. Belzoni, and deposited in the entrance court of the British Museum, from whence it was removed by the Rev. G. A. Browne last week, by virtue of an order from Mr. Belzoni. The slab is composed of a single block of red granite; its length when entire exceeds probably ten feet, its breadth is about five feet. The sarcophagus itself, to which this lid belongs, is, we are informed, on its way from Egypt, and if so, we heartily wish that its final destination may be the same. The Museum would then possess an admirable counterpart to the splendid present it received from Messrs. Waddington and Hanbury—we allude to the mummy which, together with its case, is one of the most perfect and beautiful that can be found in any known collection. On the surface of the granite lid executed with uncommon spirit, and in fine relief, reposes the effigy of the monarch, whose remains were placed in the sarcophagus itself. The figure is perfect, with the exception of the legs, which are mutilated. On either side of the image (within whose hands are the emblems which Osiris constantly carries) appears the profile of a female figure, whose hands touch the body. On a line with these figures, we can clearly trace the Egyptian snake that invariable companion of all their mystic and sepulchral processions, as we behold them represented in the plates to Belzoni's volume; whilst a snake of uncommon size encircles nearly the whole of the slab. Several hieroglyphics are very visibly and distinctly carved on the rim; and to the readers of hieroglyphics we must look for information with regard to the name of the Monarch whose effigy is here represented; nor indeed do we despair in this respect, since very extraordinary discoveries towards the decyphiring of Egyptian inscriptions have been lately made by Dr. Young and others, but more especially by an ingenious Frenchman, named Champollion, who has addressed a letter on this subject to the Secretary of the French Academy, in which he has developed his plan, and has apparently established almost an entire alphabet of the sacerdotal characters in Egyptian inscription. Mr. Champollion, we are informed, reads with facility the mysterious writings on the walls of the tomb of Psammis (or rather of Petosiris), which Belzoni constructed at Paris, and explains them with great fluency. A fac-simile is taking of the hieroglyphics in question, and as they are extremely distinct, and are occasionally contained in a short of cylinder, or as it is denominated by Champollion, a cartouche, which was always the case when a proper name was inserted, it is far from improbable that something more than conjecture may be obtained in regard to the name of the royal occupant of the sarcophagus. We cannot close this paragraph without expressing our sincere hope that Mr. Belzoni, in the arduous journey upon which he is now embarking, may meet with similar success to what has crowned his former efforts. No one certainly more fully [illegible] and deserves every encouragement from the public; and we trust, that no jealousy of [illegible] earned fame will have the effect of par[illegible] efforts to accomplish an expedition of [illegible] ment, both in regard to the extension of knowledge and to the benefit of mankind. Cambridge Chronicle.

NEW CREATTION OF CARDINALS.

By the Italian papers which recently arrived we find that there has been a new creation of Cardinals. The Diario di Roma of the 12th ultgives us the following addition of twelve to the sacred college. His Holiness, the same paper adds, had raised eleven more churchmen to the purple, but he reserves their names in petto:—

1. Francis Bertazzoli, Bishop of Edessa.
2. John Francis Falzacappa, Bishop of Ancona.
3. Antonio Pallotta, Auditor-General of the Sacred Chamber.
4. Francis Lerlupi, Auditor of the Sacred Rota.
5. Charles Maria Pedicini, Secretary of the Propaganda.
6. Louis Pandolf, Secretary of the Consulta.
7. Fabricius Turriozzi, Assessor of the Holy and Universal Inquisition.
8. Hercules Dandini, Bishop of Osimo and Cingoli.
9. Charles Odelaschi, Auditor of his Holiness and Archbishop of Ferrara.
10. Antony Frosini, prefect of the Sacred Palaces and Major Domo of his Holiness.
11. Thomas Riario Sforza, Master of the Chamber to his Holiness.
12. Viviano Orfini, Deacon of the Sacred Chamber.

It will be observed that the above list is entirely composed of Italians, and that the most of them make part of the Household of the Pope, or reside in Rome in different offices of the Government.

DARING OUTRAGE IN IRELAND.—The following daring attack and gallant defence took place at Ballymagooly, in the neighbourhood of Mallow, on Tuesday last: the house attacked was that of Quarter-master Ring, late of the North Cork militia, and the outrage was attended with circumstances which give it a more than ordinary interest:—Mr. Ring, and his son and daughter, were sitting at a table in the parlour, not expecting at the moment any attack, when, about the hour of seven o'clock, the house was attacked by an armed party, some of whom had actually entered before their approach was perceived. Mr. Ring and his son seized two short bayonets which lay on the table, grappled with the ruffians, and sustained a most unequal conflict with those who had entered; while Miss Ring, with great presence of mind, fastened the door against the others, and brought down the fire-arms which had been previously loaded. These were promptly discharged at the villains, who then began to retreat, and were pursued and literally fought down the village by Mr. Ring and his son, with the short bayonets in their hands. ort of personage was brought before the Chief Magistrate yesterday, charged with a very unmanly misdemeanour.

This Mr. Aumee is a young man—say thirty, or there abouts, tolerably goodlooking and not a little aware of it. He has recently it seems married an ancient widow who keeps a lodging-house in Salisbury-street and the widow is dotingly fond of him, but he is not content with her venerable affections, and in order to solace himself for the sacrifice he has made by the marriage, he has taken to making love to a neighbouring servant girl, by displaying himself at his window in a still more unfurnished condition in some respects than the great brazen fellow in Hyde-park. Contrary to his expectation, however the damsel was not at all taken by the display; she was indeed rather disgusted than otherwise and upon his repeating it she complained to her mistress, her mistress mentioned it to her husband—(Mr. Tate, jun.), and thence arose the present proceeding—Mr. Tate conceiving it a duty he owed to the public to expose and punish such unseemly conduct.

Before the Magistrate he appeared to be extremely indignant at the charge; but unfortunately for him, it was distinctly sworn to by more than one witness, and he was held to bail.

Mr. M'KENZIE.—Miss Mary Anne Scott and Miss Eliza Francis, two well-dressed wandering nymphs, were charged with having fallen in love with Mr. M'Kenzie's silver watch, and with having feloniously deprived him thereof.

Mr. M'Kenzie was on his way home at twelve o'clock on Wednesday night. He was exactly in that comfortable state denominated "half seas over"—rather muddled, but perfectly aware who he was, what he was, and where he was. In this state he met the ladies in Bow-street, and they politely requested him to furnish them with a small cordial. "With all my heart," said Mr. M'Kenzie; and handing them into the Russian Hotel, he treated their ivories with rum shrub. This done, they complained that the rum shrub made them excessively hungry; and they hinted that a trifling supper would not be unacceptable to them. "With all my heart" said the gallant Mr. M'Kenzie again; and handing them into an adjoining restaurateur's (fashionably a slop bang shop), he treated their coral lips with the best of every thing—roast pig, boiled beef, and beef-steak pie, with turnip-tops, &c. en suite. Supper over, they thanked him kindly, and they all left the house together, walking along very comfortably till they reached Broad-court; and there they proposed to part. But the parting was so managed by the ladies, that they parted poor Mr. M'Kenzie and his silver watch, with a handsome gold chain, and an uncommonly large seal; and he thought their so doing was "extremely ungenteel" They ran away with it, and never said good night; but he bawled out lustily, and they were caught by the guardians of the night—& then Mr. M'Kenzie's watch could no where be found.

The ladies in their defence admitted having taken the rum shrub, and also the supper; but they solemnly denied all knowledge of the watch—it did not stand to reason, they said, that they should stoop so low as all that.

The Magistrate ordered that they should be accommodated with apartments at the county seat until Monday next, and then be heard again.

he parted from her, but she wished to retain possession of the house where she resided. For this purpose he gave her his signature, with permission to fill up the blank with a demise, but she had availed herself of the opportunity to write a promise of marriage. He would prove that she was a woman of bad character and infinite intrigue; that she had not only granted favours to Capt. Lovie, but to others.

Alexander Bremner said, that Mrs. Macpherson had herself told him that she had lived with Capt. Lovie: the connexion had commenced at Dartford, on the way to Gravesend.

Robert Porter, an agent for the Defendant, said, that Mrs. Macpherson informed him that the defendant had given her a gold watch, and that she had tricked him out of a receipt for 10l. for half a year's rent. She was very coarse in her conversation—too much for him, though he was a seaman. (Laughter)

Mr. Thos. Buchan, who had married Capt. Lovie's sister, once lodged with Mrs. Macpherson; but he left the house because there were scenes which a decent female could not well put up with.

Mrs. Gilders said that Mrs. Macpherson had lodged at her house three months, during which time she had behaved with great propriety.

Mr. Montriou, an attorney, who had married a sister of Mrs. Macpherson, said, I have not permitted my family to associate with her for three or four years, on account of her general mode of life. I argued with her on the impropriety of her conduct of keeping up a correspondence with a man who did not mean to marry her; she denied the reports; she said if the old fool chose to marry her, it was no concern of mine—that was his look out: if he would make some settlement on her, she did not care for the man. A short time after that, we quarrelled; I left her house. I once detected her in criminality myself.

Mr. SCARLETT now asked if Mrs. Staniforth (Mrs. M.'s daughter) had not told him that she had seen her mother in bed with men, and carried breakfast to them.

Mr. Adolphus objected, that the witness had not been asked whether she had said so, but whether the fact was so; and therefore the contradiction did not apply.

While Mr. Scarlett persisted in putting the question, and Mr. Adolphus in objecting, the witness was going on with his story.

Mr. ADOLPHUS—Hold your tongue, Sir!

Mr. SCARLETT—Recollect, you are not in the Old Bailey.

Mr. ADOLPHUS persisted in his objection, and

The CHIEF JUSTICE decided in his favour, but permitted Mr. Scarlett to recall the witness, and ask her whether she had ever said so.

Mrs. Staniforth was then recalled, and denied in the most distinct and explicit manner, that she had ever made the assertions imputed to her.

Mr. Montriou then circumstantially related that he was sent for by Mrs. Staniforth and dined with her on the following Sunday, when she made the statements alluded to, by way of complaint against her mother.—On cross-examination, the witness admitted that after the act of criminality in which he had detected the plaintiff, he had repeatedly urged the defendant to marry her; that he had lived with his family for weeks in her house; and that Captain Lovie having given him a general authority, he had offered her 200l. to settle the affair.

Mr. ADOLPHUS replied, commenting on the whole case; arguing that Porter and Montriou were unworthy of credit; that no attempt had been made to sustain the grossest statements made by evidence; and that the defence, even if true, was scandalous; and being false, ought to excite the just indignation of the jury.

The CHIEF JUSTICE summed up the evidence, and the Jury found a verdict for the plaintiff—Damages 500l.

PREMATURE INTERMENT—Dr Crichton, physician to the Grand Duke Nicholas, brother of the Emperor of Russia, relates that "a young girl, in the service of the Princess of ———, who had for some time kept her bed with a nervous affection, at length to all appearance was deprived of life. Her face had all the character of death—her body was perfectly cold, and every other symptom of death was manifested. She was removed into another room and placed in a coffin. On the day fixed for her funeral, hymns, according to the custom of the country, were sung before the door; but at the very moment when they were going to nail down the coffin, a perspiration was seen upon her skin, and in a few minutes it was succeeded by a convulsive motion in the hands and feet. In a few moments she opened her eyes, and uttered a piercing scream. The faculty were instantly called in, and in the space of a few days her health was completely re-established. The account which she gave of her situation is extremely curious. She said that she appeared to dream that she was dead, but that she was sensible to every thing that was passing round her, and distinctly heard her friends bewailing her death; she felt them envelope her in the shroud, and place her in the coffin. This sensation gave her extreme agony, and she attempted to speak, but her soul was unable to act upon her body. She describes her sensations as very contradictory, as if she was and was not in her body at one and the same instant. She attempted in vain to move her arms, to open her eyes, or to speak. The agony of her mind was at height when she heard the funeral hymn, found that they were about to nail down of the coffin. The horror of being buried gave a new impulse to her mind, which power over its corporeal organization, and produced the effects which excited the notice of those who were about to convey her to a premature grave."—European Magazine.

Count de Bettera, a Frenchman, was last week examined before the Privy Council at Whitehall, charged with having insulted Prince Paul Esterhazy, & threatened to blow his brains out. The Count claimed, it seems a large sum from the Prince, which, he said, the Prince's father had lost to him at the gaming table. The Prince, to get rid of him, consented to give him 150l. in full of all demands; but the Count subsequently insisted on being paid the whole sum, used the most violent threats, insulted the Prince in the streets and at his residence and published a caricature of him. The Prince at length complained to Government. After being examined, the Count was committed to Cold Bathfields Prison, till he finds sureties for keeping the peace.—The Morning Chronicle says the above account is not correct—for that they know that M. Bettera is not a Frenchman but a Ragusan—that he has not been before the Privy Council—that his claim is for all aged services not a gambling debt—and that M. Bettera is known to men of some note in the Russian service. The Chronicle adds, that as there was a Foreign Ambassador in the case, they deemed the affair of a ticklish nature.]

A novel spectacle was exhibited yesterday at Edmonston's Wharf. A small schooner (the W. Henry), from a wrecking voyage along the Florida Cape, arrived at this port on Saturday evening, with the guns of the Alligator. Off the bar, on the night before last, the rain that fell, froze on every particle of the rigging; and yesterday morning (one of the coldest, clearest, most splendid, and most bitter days we ever experienced), the appearance of this little vessel was beautiful. Its deck like glass, and its rigging as if wrapped round by some ingenious artist with foldings of the purest cotton. The smallest thread on board was encrusted in crystal, and every knot folded in a beautiful envelope of ice, exhibited the rich tinctures of the sun. The William Henry appeared as if she had just made a voyage to the North Pole. The very animals on board appeared to come from some foreign clime. A little dog looked quite astonished & a black pig appeared to be ruminating on the white and unsullied objects that met him wherever he would obtrude his inquiring snout. —Charleston City Gazette.
